This paper on the Union of the Comoros was prepared by a staff team of the International Monetary Fund as background documentation for the periodic consultation with the member country. Although electricity access improved substantially (rising from 78. 8% in 2023) the country still faces a structural vulnerability driven by a generation base. The Comoros, with an estimated gross domestic product (GDP) per capita income of about $700, is among the world's poorest and least developed nations. Although the quality of the land differs from island to island, most of the widespread lava -encrusted soil formations are unsuited to agriculture. Comoros' economy is gradually recovering, with growth rising to 3. 4% in 2024, yet remains insufficient to reduce persistent poverty and inequality.
